Fumbling for the right approach, you realize that you're just awkwardly fitting into the composition of high school life with a bottom locker, the last place in the lunch line, and being last out of the auditorium. Meanwhile, there are many things to see and do; the Freshman Reception Dance, class meetings, weekly pep assemblies, football games, and all those classes. Yes, here you are, Freshmen, starting your apprenticeship.

sophomore class

You Sophs reflect the new ideas in your work with the hustle to get into the swing of high school and class activities. You sponsor dances, begin thinking of the Junior-Senior Prom, and your Talent Parade. This is the year you spend a class in a car and wonder if they call this schoolwork. This is also the year you discover Shakespeare and the literary arts. When the year is over you breathe a sigh of relief but still look forward to next year.

This year you're running wild with your own style of art. You know the teachers and all the useful arts of school; how to get into study hall late, talk to your "steady" in History class, and beat the Seniors out of the auditorium. This is the year of frantic class meetings, concessions at the games, Junior Play, and finally, your big night—the Junior-Senior Prom. For the first time in your life you hate to see the school year end, and you look forward to next year with mixed feelings.

You realize that now your four years of high school are drawing to a close and there is a sense of excitement in the air. You feel it from the time you get to leave the auditorium first, to the night you receive your sheepskins. This is the year of the Senior Play, Senior Day, the last year of wonderful Junior-Senior Proms and hectic days of tests. Class night, Baccalaureate, Graduation and you're on your own.

Although a picture is worth a thousand words, the art of writing is not out of date. You journalists record, in words, events for posterity, as does the artist with his brush and canvas.

Remember our greatest literary artists, from Twain to Hemingway, have begun as newspapermen, so keep pushing your pens and someday you may all be Pulitzer Prize winners.

student council

Webster says politics is "'The art of government.'" You know, he's right.

Twice a year you governmental artists circulate petitions, make speeches, and draw posters. Using your skills, you decide the many tricky problems that come before you and you supply assemblies and other forms of entertainment.

You are the "Old Masters" of mentality, the brilliant few that have the honor of wearing the Gold Lamp pin and of having the seal of the Scholarship Federation on your diploma. Yes, you are the students most likely to present the world with a masterpiece.

Perhaps one of the first arts man ever attempted was singing. Mankind has ever raised his voice in song to express his feelings. You choraliars have brought forth the music that is within all of us and in assemblies, special programs and the Musical comedy you have shared your wonderful artistry with all of us.

"You won't do any business if you haven't got a band . . ." (George Cohan.) Well, B.U.H.S. has a band, a good one too. You budding Beethovens produce some strange noises during the practices, but on the football field, in the auditorium, and in parades you play music that would make any school proud.

The Future Homemakers of America threw all their energy into the numerous projects which demonstrated their excellence in these useful arts. State convention at Asilomar, cake-bakes and sales, prize winning entries at the county fair, added up to a busy schedule for these domestic artists.

The booth awarded second prize at the Date Festival in Indio; in addition to the many individual awards.

The re-vitalized organization is packed with charm and talent; really pretty as a picture.

Miss Bomgardner and club officers.

the lively arts

Webster calls a parade a "formal display." Well, you Sophs gave the Artists and apprentices of our Banning School system a chance to display their talents, possibly not formally, but certainly entertainingly in your "Talent Net."

Me and my shadow.

"Silence is golden".

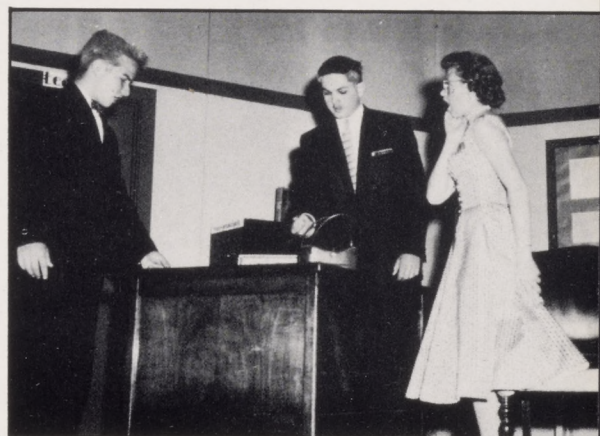

Any similarity to Dragnet was purely intended.

Sowell Sings.

Play something, Ernie!

junior play

The dream of all high school students was realized in the Junior Class satire, "No More Homework." The hilarious class play portrayed the tribulations of the students who took over the school administration for a day. In abolishing homework, the scholars almost demolished the school in a most lively example of the "lively arts."

As these photos show, it takes a lot of artists to complete the play picture; and everyone, from stage-hands to actors, contributed to the final polished presentation. Class advisors, Mrs. Varney and Mr. Capps, had a right to be proud.

senior play

The theatre arts may well be proud of the Senior Play presentation; Mark Twain's "Double Barrelled Detective Story" was a huge success.

"If we got a murderin' varmint runnin' loose in Hope Canyon it's up to me to find who it is."

". . . the show must go on!"

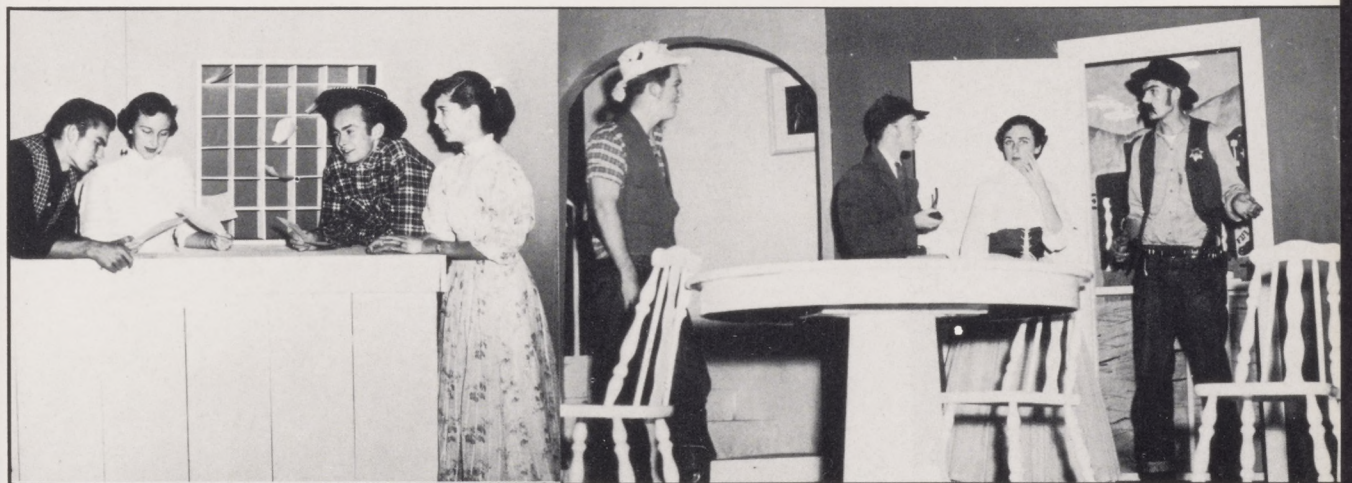

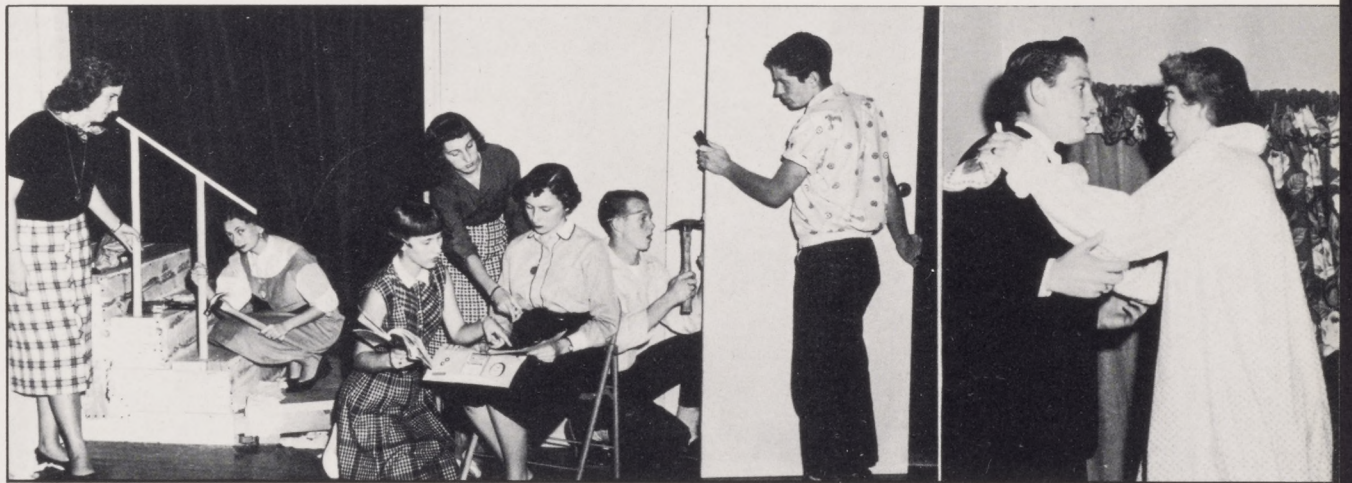

"I don't want him to die—yet!"

"Reckon this'll put us on the map for sure."

"Flint Buckner's cabin's jest been blown sky-high!"

"Uncle Sherlock tell them I didn't do it!"

dances

"Dancing in all its forms cannot be excluded from the curriculum of all education" (Nietzsche). Wonder if he ever saw Bop? There were dances galore this year, after the football and basketball games, the Homecoming Dance, Spinster Dance and all the others. We had a well rounded curriculum in the gym this year.

Hail King Darrell, crowned by Carol at the Spinster Dance.

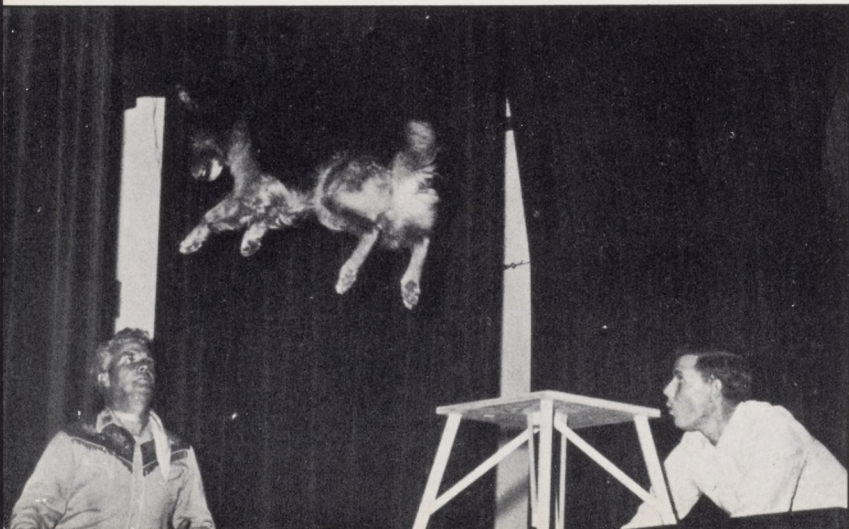

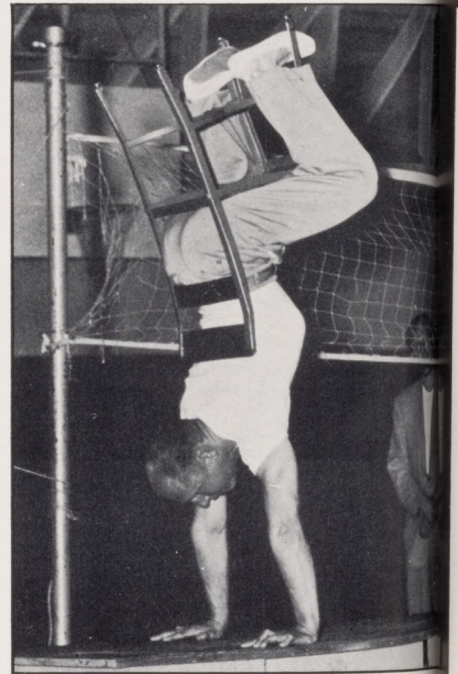

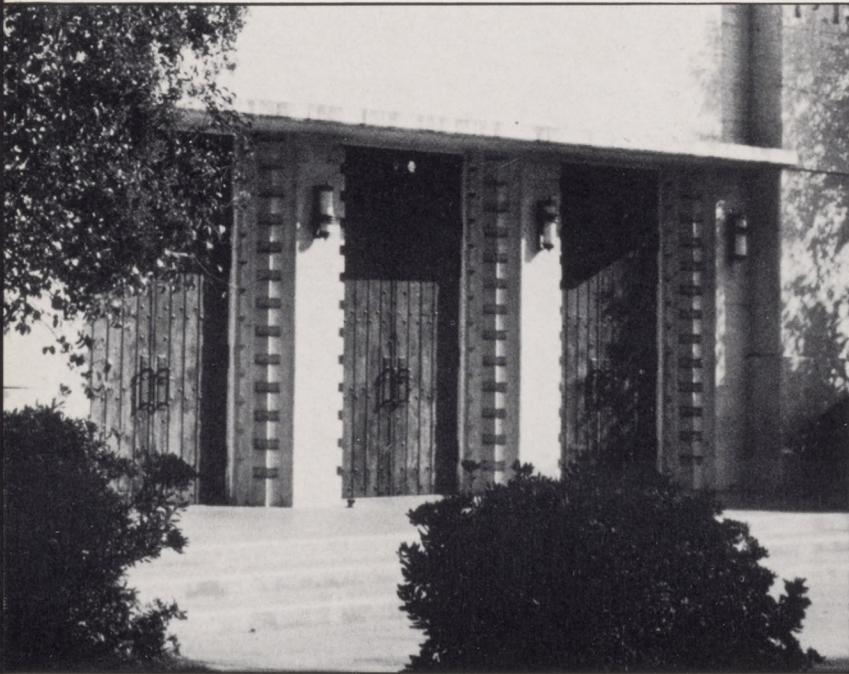

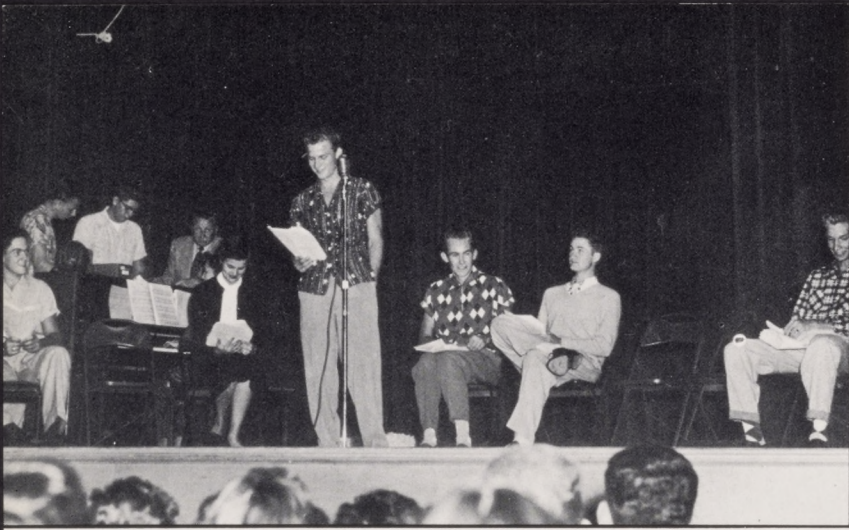

Flashy Formals at the "Karnival Kapers," a Girls' League shindig.

Spring Swing Stomp.

Dig those crazy socks at the Sophs' Sox Hop.

assemblies

The assembly program this year was interesting, educational, and most important, entertaining. Whether it was cheering for athletes in a pep-assembly, or watching the speech class trying to be dramatic, you have seen entertainment that you will recall with pleasure long after graduation.

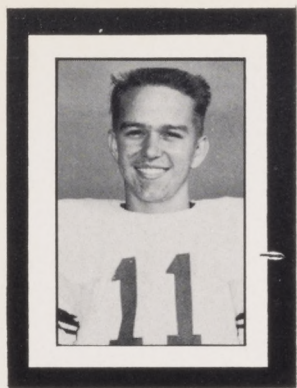

sports

The ancient Greeks taught that the human body, developed through sports, was the most perfect work of art. You athletes carry on this tradition here in B.U.H.S.

varsity football

You put all your hearts into every game, and as the paper put it: "Banning won on everything but points." It is said that artists must suffer before producing a masterpiece.
